CSN Cybersecurity Fair Highlights Online Threats

Learn how to keep yourself and your data safe in our increasingly chaotic & connected world

October 18, 2018 – The College of Southern Nevada's nationally renowned cybersecurity program will mark Cybersecurity Awareness Month next week with its first Cybersecurity Fair.

The free event will feature computer security experts, CSN's cybersecurity faculty, hands-on activities and a range of vendors who can offer products, services and insights into what's being called the modern version of the Wild West.

"Cybersecurity has never been a more important issue than it is right now," said Margaret Taylor, chair of CSN's Computing and Information Technology Department. "That's why CSN expanded its program in recent years. As risks increase in the online world, highly trained cybersecurity professionals become more vital to us all. But we should never leave our security up to the experts only. There are some basic steps all of us can take to make our online experiences safer every day."

Earlier this year, CSN's cybersecurity program became the only one in Nevada to join the nation's elite programs by being named a National Center of Academic Excellence in Cyber Defense 2-Year Education by the Department of Homeland Security and the National Security Agency.

Come see what all the fuss is about at CSN's Cybersecurity Fair.
