HUMANITIES & COMMUNICATION

Programs and majors in Humanities & Communication lead to careers in public relations, journalism, television, languages, human resources and public safety.

CSN COLLEGE OF SOUTHERN NEVADA

DO THESE THINGS INTEREST YOU?

- Telling stories.
- Learning new languages.
- Helping people bridge cultural differences.
- Meeting new people.

If so, this area of study may be right for you. Once you have declared your area of study, you can schedule your advising appointment and talk about which specific Humanities & Communication degree or certificate you would like to pursue.

DEGREES & CERTIFICATES IN THIS AREA OF STUDY

Communication (Associate of Arts)
Creative Writing (Associate of Arts)
Deaf Studies (Associate of Applied Science)
Deaf Studies: American Sign Language/English Interpreting (Bachelor of Applied Science)
Deaf Studies: Interpreter Preparation (Associate of Applied Science)
English (Associate of Arts)
Journalism/Media Studies: Advertising/Public Relations (Associate of Arts)
Journalism/Media Studies: News Production (Associate of Arts)
Latin American & Latina/o Studies (Associate of Arts)
Philosophy (Associate of Arts)
World Languages (Associate of Arts)

For information on careers in humanities and communication, visit www.csn.edu/commarea.

NOTE: Associate of Arts, Business, and Science degrees are intended for transfer to another NSHE institution. Associate of Applied Science degrees are for a specific occupation, intended to respond to the needs of the workforce and may transfer to a NSHE institution offering a Bachelor of Applied Science degree.

CSN is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution. For more information, visit www.csn.edu/nondiscrimination.